

TWENTY-THIRTY.io Announces Official $2030 Mascot

Welcoming "Nino-chan": $2030's local, neighborhood shiba-ken as part of the $2030 team

Tokyo, Japan — Today, TWENTY-THIRTY.io ($2030) announces its first official mascot, "Nino-chan", $2030's local, neighborhood shiba-ken, as part of the $2030 team. Nino-chan will act as a $2030 brand ambassador, with the goal of warming hearts amid a crypto landscape that has gotten colder and less hospitable in recent years, along with assisting us in our goal of commodifying the debts to society of the kabal driving the NEW WORLD ORDER (NWO) and reaching 1B USD in market cap by year 2030.

In addition to being featured heavily in X posts and promotions, Nino-chan will also appear on t-shirts in the Official $2030 Online Shop and in stickers in the official $2030 Telegram group, located at: https://t.me/twenty_thirty_io.

All net sales proceeds of merchandise will be used to fund project operations, and sales reports from the shop will be provided to the $2030 community on a quarterly basis, as needed.

About the TWENTY-THIRTY.io ($2030) project

As a "meme coin for FREEDOM", the $2030 project disrupts the NEW WORLD ORDER (NWO)/Agenda 2030 and "flips the misdeeds of the NWO kabal into memes, fun, and investment". With a dev team based in Tokyo, Japan, $2030 is the only crypto project that commodifies the debts to society of the NWO kabal.
